WHAT: Join the South Florida Water Management District (SFWMD), the Hendry-Glades Audubon Society and avian enthusiasts across the nation for the 16th annual Great Backyard Bird Count.

Each year, “citizen scientists” submit checklists to help researchers at the Cornell Lab of Ornithology in Ithaca, N.Y., and the National Audubon Society study and protect birds. Florida has ranked first among participating states in reporting the most birds.

While anyone can join the count from their own backyard or nearby park, the SFWMD and the Hendry-Glades Audubon will lead birders and photographers on three separate days to an Everglades Stormwater Treatment Area (STA) in Hendry County that is nationally known as a bird-watching spot. STAs are the water-cleaning workhorses of Everglades restoration. They have also become renowned havens for wildlife and outdoor enthusiasts alike.

The District provides a variety of recreational opportunities on public lands while continuing to manage them to support environmental restoration, water supply, water quality and flood control missions. At present, the District has opened 621,000 acres of land to the public. Many of these properties are in their natural state or have enhancements such as picnic tables, informational kiosks, campsites and hiking trails.

For more information on recreational opportunities throughout the District's 16-county region, visit www.sfwmd.gov/recreation. Also visit, The Great Backyard Bird Count.
