

2011 WATER WATCH

Keeping an Eye on Water Resources

District-Wide Conditions for December 19, 2011

The South Florida Water Management District (SFWMD) is issuing the following briefing:

South Florida's dry season started with below-average rainfall. Water supplies remain stable from Orlando to the Florida Keys, with key water basins holding steady with levels near normal for this time of year.

Below-average rainfall is expected over the next few months, indicating a potential return to water shortage conditions in the late spring. As a result, the 16-county region remains under a water shortage warning. Note: This is the final weekly Water Watch briefing for 2011.

Water Conservation Measures

- South Florida is under the District's Year-Round Landscape Irrigation Rule that limits residential and business landscape irrigation to two or three days per week based on location.
 - Some city and county governments have adopted local ordinances that differ from the District rule and may further limit landscape irrigation. To determine watering days and times in your area, contact your local government or visit www.sfwmd.gov/2days.

- Note: Customers of the West Palm Beach and Lake Worth utilities remain under local orders that limit landscape irrigation to one day per week.
- Permitted water users such as nurseries, agriculture, golf courses and utilities are required to continue following the water use conditions in their permits.
 - Copies of water use permits can be found in the Application/Permit records search online at www.sfwmd.gov/ePermitting.
